

INDUSTRIAL MECHANIC

The three-and-a-half-year training programme for industrial mechanics prepares you for exiting and responsible tasks. In cooperation with the vocational school you regularly alternate between vocational school days and practical phases. The training takes place in our maintenance department, and is aimed at applicants who enjoy learning a technical profession. Industrial mechanics are responsible for the set-up and maintenance of machines. To this end, they also manufacture spare parts themselves, and learn how to dismantle and assemble devices and assembly groups in the course of their training. This means they make an important contribution to a smooth, effective, economical and modern production.
